

Keynote Presentations

Watching Jeff speak is akin to going to the theater: he is more than anything a natural performer. Combine these talents with his extensive experience and knowledge on the topic of innovation and what you get is an exciting presentation that will propel any company to innovate. Jeff has several popular and highly customized presentations, however, he does give the option of creating an entirely new presentation for your company based on your needs. Please do not hesitate to contact the Innovatrium today for more information on these options.

coming generation if it wants to stay successful. Jeff's presentation on "Connecting the Dots of Innovation" showcases practices that have been proven to make innovation happen. Jeff explains that by starting at the desired result (the end) and working backwards you can really ascertain the moves you need to be make to achieve that desired outcome.

Leading Innovation

Through this presentation, you will learn how to create organizational cultures and habits that are conducive to creativity. Jeff introduces the traits and habits that foster innovation, and explains how to implement them. Specifically, you will learn to leverage current processes and systems to find growth opportunities, create a collaborative environment, and champion a risk taking-culture to better innovate.

Innovation You

Everyday we make goals and promises to ourselves to be better in certain aspects of our lives. Although our intentions are noble, we are often diverted by various daily distractions or the notion that our goal is too hard to reach. Innovation You is Jeff's reply; he takes a direct and simple approach to breaking down the steps needed to accomplish your goal, and he is honest about the roadblocks you may face along the way. After decades of working to innovate organizations, Jeff takes on the ultimate challenge to help you innovate yourself.

Connecting the Dots of Innovation

No matter how successful an organization has been, it must continue to innovate and change with the

Custom Topics

Jeff also offers clients the option of having him create a presentation that is completely customized to their organizations' specific needs